Unpleasant Side of a Practical Joke.

[From the Boston Advertiser.] Mr. Jacob Knous, of the firm of Weatherby, Knous & Pelton, wholesale and retail dry goods dealers in Hartford, was recently in Boston for a few weeks undergoing a surgical operation. At his hotel on Christmas day a congenial party enjoyed dinner by themselves, Mr. Knous being one of the company. Some one not acquainted with him joined the party and one of the number inquired. "Do you know Knous?" festivities and after there was a constant revival of the conundrum, "Doyou know Knous?" A good deal of fun was made of it, as will be made out of better things when a company of wide-awake fellows are in the mood for laughing at trifles. What followed this perfectly good-natured chaffing is told by our correspondent in Hartford : Mr. Knous started for home on Thursday afternoon, and if the train he took had not been snow-bound near Worceshad not been snow-bound near Worcesther he would have arrived soon after seven TION, Jaundice, Bilious Attacks, SICK HEADo'clock. His hotel friends in Boston, knowing nothing of the delay to the train, and supposing he had reached Hartford on time, thought they would send the joke along with him; and so, waiting, as they believed, till he had got home, a dispatch was sent to his address in Congress street, in these world :-"Do you know Knous?"

And following this was another forwarded in this shape :-"We have found a man who don't know

Knous. Both these dispatches were delivered at the same time and were received by Mrs. Knous. who was expecting her husband. She placed but one construction upon them, and that was that, Mr. Knous had met with a ailread accident, and that the real purport o the last dispatch, which was confused by ransmission, was that some one was wanted to dentify him. She at once sent for her father, James B. the services of D. M. Seymour Vice President of the Hartford Life and Annuity Iusurance Company, who is a friend of the family surance Company, who is a friend of the family surance Company, who is a friend of the family surance Company, who is a friend of the family surance Company, who is a friend of the family surance Company, who is a friend of the family surance Company, who is a friend of the family surance Company, who is a friend of the family surance Company, who is a friend of the family surance Company, who is a friend of the family surance Company, who is a friend of the family surance Company, who is a friend of the family surance Company, who is a friend of the family surance Company, who is a friend of the family surance Company, who is a friend of the family surance Company, who is a friend of the family surance Company, who is a friend of the family surance Company, who is a friend of the family surance Company. ly, and Mr. Seymour and Mrs. Knous at once started for Boston, the latter leaving her house and children in the care of Mrs. Seymour. The case was an urgent one, auc no sort of inconvenience could be allowed b stand in the way of immediate action. And now followed a combination of circumstances which added to the axieties and anguish of the parties directly nterested. The train to Boston was stopped at Worcester, and here Mr. Seymour and Mrs. Inous waited in the most restless condition. "hey telegraphed to Boston, but got no respone. While there the train from Boston passed, and on this train was Mr. Knous himself, alive, well and happy, and entirely unconscious of the fact that at that very moment his wife was witin a dozen rods of him, suffering the most terble solicitude on his account. Mr. Seymour ent through the train to see if he could not fid some one who could give particulars of M Knous and escaped uoticing Mr. Knous beause that gentleman was in a compartmet in one of the drawing-room cars. The resit was that Mr. Knous arrived home Friday forning and found all his friends in a fearful uspense over his fate, while the town was fullf rumors concerning his sad fate. Mrs. Kucs reached Boston somewhat earlier, and it as not till she got FIRE FROM STEAM.—Ihas been a mooted question whether steam pes can cause fire, some mechanics and builts refusing to be lieve it, though there have een several reported cases of fires originating woodwork in the vicinity of steam-heating pes. The Philadelphia Ledger has been referd to a case somewhat similar to those refeed to, which was examined and reported up by a committee of the Franklin Institute 1856. The committee came to the concsion that the fire they investigated was causeby the "charring" of sawdust in a factory, thenarring being produced by the heat from a sam tank in which the steam was usually card at a pressure of fifty pounds, or at a tempeture of about 280 degrees of Fahrenheit. Ithe course of their report the committee reard to the fact pointed out by the chief the London Fire Brigade, viz: "That woo long exposed to temperature but little abe that of boiling water will become after shile charred, and chief the committee addne fact recorded in Bicking's "Guide to the oper Regulation of Buildings in Towns," tl Day & Martin's blacking factory, which a heated by "hot water" pipes, took fire 1848 in the wooden casing around the pipes. An examination in this instance showed that wherever the pipes touched the floor the beds were charred. The temperature in theseipes "never much exceeded 300 degrees" Cahrenheit. - Balt.

A TEA TRAIN .- Mentihas been made of the passing of a heavy train East. The train is a special one, coming of sixteen cars, each car containing ten t, the whole aggregating 160 tons, or 320,0pounds of tea. It left San Francisco on theening of the 3d, at dusk, and reached Truck at dark last night, being nine hours in adve of the time on which it would ordinarilave run. It is ex- trial. Manufactured and sold by pected equal diligence we exhibited east of Truckee, and the cargoach Now York in about ten days. If closonnection is made with the Atlantic stears, the tea should be landed upon the Liveol docks in twentyone days from its date shipment, and be stored in Lordon the seeding day. The cost to the railroad cpanies by pushing freight in this manner illy 18 per cent., and often 20 per cent. mothan by the usual speed, owing to the disjement of trains and extra working forces, wand tear, etc., etc. It is well-known that a ng effort has been made to turn this Oriettrade to our overland railroads, hence therefore made for speedy transit. This atpt at quick transportation will, if succest, demonstrate the feasibility of sending the freight by rail, and tend to greatly enhe the prosperity of our trans-continental raids. It may well be regarded as one of the 1 important experiments ever attempted by railroads. - Sacramento California Recore
